Pennsylvania American Water Celebrates Clarion Team’s Two Decades of Injury-Free Operations

CLARION, Pa. (June 10, 2025) – Pennsylvania American Water is honoring its Clarion water system team for 20 years without any safety incidents.

“We take great pride in our Clarion team's dedication to safety,” said Northwest Director of Operations Jon Natale. “During the past two decades, our employees have consistently operated at a treatment facility that employs heavy machinery, chemicals, and electrical equipment throughout the entire distribution system without a single recordable incident.”

During the incident-free timespan, the local team has processed more than 11 billion gallons of drinking water. The Clarion Water Treatment Plant is responsible for treating and supplying water to more than 10,000 residents in the boroughs of Clarion, Shippenville, Sligo, and Strattanville and the Township of Clarion, as well as portions of Elk, Farmington, Highland, Knox, Limestone, Monroe, Paint, and Piney townships, Clarion County.

Pennsylvania American Water employees undergo various safety trainings each year, focusing on areas such as chemical handling, confined spaces, and work zone safety. The company also strongly encourages employee involvement in its near-miss safety program, which is designed to identify and address potential hazards that could lead to injuries.
